

College Students, Faculty Expect Johnson's Re-election

While the large majority of U. S. college students and faculties agree that President Lyndon B. Johnson will be re-elected to a second term, the students favor a Republican candidate.

This is the finding of the Playboy College Opinion Survey -- covering 200 campuses -- conducted one week after the election of John V. Lindsay as Mayor of New York City.

As of today a majority of the students -- 55 per cent -- would vote for a Republican candidate in 1968, the survey shows. On the other hand, 66 per cent of the faculty would prefer a Democratic candidate.

Democratic Win Expected

Despite their preference, however, 91 per cent of the students agree that a Democratic candidate would win the election. Eighty-six per cent concede the election of Johnson while five per cent think Senator Robert Kennedy of New York might win.

Among the faculty sample polled, 95 per cent believe that the Democratic party will again be victorious. Only one per cent of these believe it will be someone other than Johnson.

Voting Age Questioned

The Playboy College Opinion Survey also asked, "Since American males are eligible for the draft at the age of 18 and are serving their country, should the legal voting age be lowered to 18 in all states?"

Only 55 per cent of both the students and faculty agreed that this should become law. The principal reason offered by the survey's respondents was that intellectual maturity is more important than physical maturity.

Of those students who chose Republican candidates, 11 per cent cast their ballots for Barry Goldwater, 10 per cent for New York Mayor-elect Lindsay, 9 per cent for Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania.

Others Receive Votes

Others chose Michigan Governor George Romney, eight per cent; former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, eight per cent; Governor Mark Hatfield of Oregon, four per cent; and Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, four per cent.

Among the students who prefer the Democratic party in 1968, 29 per cent chose Johnson as their favorite candidate; 12 per cent, Senator Kennedy; 2 per cent, Vice President Hubert Humphrey; and 1 per cent, Governor George Wallace of Alabama.

Results among faculty members were 48 per cent for Johnson, 9 per cent for Humphrey and 6 per cent for Kennedy.

Nine per cent of the faculty members chose Romney; 7 per cent Scranton; 6 per cent, Goldwater; 5 per cent, Nixon; 4 per cent, Lindsay; 1 per cent, Hatfield; and 1 per cent, Rockefeller.

From the 9 per cent of students who believe a Republican candidate might emerge victorious, Romney, Scranton, Goldwater and Lindsay were each conceded a 2 per cent chance.

Two per cent of the faculty thought Nixon might be a winning candidate while 1 per cent said Romney had a chance.

Poll Includes 1200

The survey represents the thinking of a permanent sounding board of 1000 students from all classes, ages and backgrounds in addition to a permanent panel of 200 faculty members.

The survey also reflects opinions from campuses on a regional basis.

Analysis of returns on a regional basis shows that among students who chose the Democratic party, Eastern colleges gave their vote to Johnson by 39 per cent, while in the South the President pulled only 18 per cent.

South Supports LBJ

Among the Democratic faculty, the South went for Johnson by 58 per cent; the East, 49 per cent; and the West, 41 per cent.

Scranton received 12 per cent of the Republican student vote in both the East and the West, while Goldwater pulled 21 per cent in the South and 6 per cent in the Midwest.

Republican faculty members in the East preferred Scranton by 22 per cent while the Pennsylvania governor received 9 per cent in the West. Goldwater received 12 per cent of the Midwestern Republican faculty vote and 3 per cent of the Southern instructors.

Laredos To Be Featured At Artist Series Sunday

An added attraction has been announced for the Artist Series to be held tomorrow evening, Jan. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Chapel-auditorium.

Originally scheduled as a recital by pianist Ruth Laredo, the presentation will also include Miss Laredo's husband, Jaime Laredo, concert violinist, according to Dr. A. W. Swensen, chairman of the Artist Series.

Their program will feature the classical numbers of Bach's "Sonate No. 2 in A Major for Violin and Clavier," "Sonate in B Flat, K. 378 for Violin and Piano," "Sonate in B Minor, Op. 58, No. 3 for Piano" by Chopin and Franck's "Sonate in A Major."

Miss Laredo, a Carnegie Hall International - Jeunesse Musique Award winner, participated with her husband in a concert at the United Nations, commemorating the 16th anniversary of the proclamation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Soloist With Stokowski

In addition to an appearance in Carnegie Hall as a soloist with Leopold Stokowski and the American Symphony Orchestra, she has appeared with the Philadelphia and Detroit symphonies and in recitals in such cities as New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

Jaime Laredo, a native Bolivian and Cultural Attaché of Bolivia's Mission to the United States, represented his adopted country, America, on a tour of Europe at the request of the First Lady and received triumphant reviews wherever he appeared.

He has played with the Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston, Washington and Dallas orchestras. His recitals are recorded by RCA Victor on the album "Presenting Jaime Laredo." This led to his being named in 1961 by the Institute of Recording Arts and Sciences as the "Best Young Performing Artist of the Year."

Travels With Group

On his fourth tour of Europe, he accompanied the Marlboro Festival Group. He is traveling with this group throughout America this winter.

His wife, who has performed the Bach "Concerto for Three Pianos" with Rudolf and Peter Serkin at the Israel Festival in Tel Aviv and Paris, also toured with the Marlboro Festival Group in Europe and the Middle East.

Matthias Receives Ph.D. In History

Dr. Ronald Matthias, History Department, received his Ph.D. degree in history at the autumn convocation of the University of Chicago Dec. 17, according to Dr. John O. Chellevold, dean of faculty.

His doctoral thesis was written on "The Know-Nothing Movement in Iowa."

KWAR Project Nears Completion

KWAR, the student operated radio station, is nearing the completion of its interior renovation project.

Fifteen hundred dollars was appropriated for the improvement of the KWAR facilities in the Little Theater. The four-week job consists largely of wood wall paneling and carpeting for what was formerly the stage floor.

Richard Wiederanders, faculty adviser for KWAR, said the changes are designed to improve the acoustical production and to enhance the appearance of the "oft-visited and very busy facility."

KWAR will hold an open house upon the completion of the remodeling. The visitation will be held in early February.

Movie On Amish At Tues. Convo

"The Old Order Amish" will be presented at Tuesday's convocation, according to Pastor Herman Diers.

"This is a movie which will make the Amish situation in Iowa a little clearer to Wartburg students and faculty," he added.

Castle Singers Announce Musical, 'Little Mary Sunshine,' Jan. 28, 29

Dr. James Fritschel, Music Department, has announced that Castle Singers will present the musical "Little Mary Sunshine" Jan. 28 and 29 at 8 p.m. in the Chapel-auditorium.

"Little Mary Sunshine," written by Rich Besoyan, was an off-Broadway production during the 1959 season. It spoofs the operettas of the 1920's and 1930's," said Fritschel.

Mary Charlson plays the lead as Little Mary Sunshine with Dennis Eggle as Captain Jim Washington. The cast also includes Tom Hubbard as Corporal Billy Jester, Pat Maxon as Nancy Twinkle, Roger Baumgardner as Chief Brownbear.

Others are Jim Baseler as Fleetfoot, Ralph Lohse as Yellowfeather, Karen Nuehring as Madame Ernestine von Liebedick, and Mike Zolnosky as General Oscar Fairfax, ret.

Other members of the Castle Singers will portray the Young Ladies of the East Chester Finishing School and the Young Gentlemen of the United States Forest Rangers.

The choreography is being done by Cathy Cornelius and Susie Childs. Francene Haibeck, Castle Singers accompanist, will be assisted by Jane Konecki.

Both Fritschel and John Gill, Speech Department, are advisers in the production. Students will be admitted by their activity tickets, according to Fritschel.

Passow To Give Senior Recital

Cynthia Passow, soprano, will be presented in senior recital Sunday, January 9, at 3 p.m. in the Chapel-auditorium. Miss Passow, from Leland, Illinois, is a student of C. Robert Larson.

Miss Passow will be assisted by senior Eleanore Gerdes, oboe; junior, Marlene Kasemeier, flute; senior Janice Schutte, soprano. Accompanist will be junior Larry Kussatz.

Miss Passow will sing selections from Bach, Handel, Strauss, Mozart, Diamond, Warlock, Ives, Rorem and Hindemith.

Sing A Song Of Protest

What's bugging the student of today? The news is full of protest marches, sit-ins, Berkeley's demonstrations and draft cardburnings -- most of which involve college students.

What causes the unrest of college campuses which results in these headlines? Few would disagree that students of today are more idealistic and more active in support of these ideals than they were in previous years.

But what causes such active support of these ideals? Lawrence A. Kimpton, vice president of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and former university administrator gave this as an explanation in a recent address:

Opinions Draw Attention

"It is a heady discovery to find that your opinions attract the interest not only of your room-mate and your girl friend but also of the major news media and some of the highest dignitaries in the nation. Such circumstances frequently propel both bizarre individuals and bizarre viewpoints into the limelight and this, I suggest, is what has been happening of late."

Undoubtedly, ego-satisfaction plays a part in some cases, but there is much more involved. The whole situation stems from idealism. The student of today tends to look at the world with a very pessimistic point of view. And there is certainly much to justify this outlook.

He sees the phoniness of people and the society around him. He sees the rigid restrictions imposed by society, the poverty which is found all around us, the race problem, war -- and he wants to do something about it.

Ideal World Visualized

He visualizes an ideal world with integration, no war, no poverty and no hypocrisy or phoniness. He feels that immediate action is necessary. So he protests via marching, burning his draft card or whatever will gain the most attention.

Irving Kristol, vice president of Basic Books, in the November, 1965, issue of the Atlantic Monthly terms the unrest and resulting rebellion "an existentialist revolt."

He defines the term in this manner: "The students are in rebellion, not so much because things are bad for them, or for others, but because things are what they are for them and for others."

And then there's the story about the college graduate who couldn't find a job because all of the high school dropouts had them.

In Germany it's "I Was Not a Nazi Polka;" at Wartburg it's "I Am Not From Wartburg Polka."

Most of these protesters realize that their demonstrations and protests are futile. In fact, there is no answer, for the disgusting parts of life will always be with us. Socialism, communism, democracy -- no type of government or way of life can ever completely eradicate the evils of society.

But the student feels a strong need to try to do something. The result is only a stronger feeling of frustration in not being able to make the world a better place in which to live. However, some feeling of satisfaction is derived from the attempt. This, along with the need to at least try to do something, makes it worthwhile.

This feeling of unrest today is even invading the high schools. During the past summers in my work as a camp counselor, I found this to be true. High school students are attempting to face problems that never even occurred to students of a few decades ago. In a way this can be called progress, but it is also a progress of frustration.

Sing Your Protests

This intellectualism marked by frustration is evident in the modern protest songs which have gained a terrific amount of popularity among both high school and college students. A prime example is Bobby Dylan's "Eve of Destruction."

Don't you understand
What I'm tryin' to say?
Can't you feel the fear
That I'm feelin' today?
If the button is pushed,
there's no running away
There'll be no one to save with the world in a grave.
Take a look around you boy.
It's bound to scare you boy.
Ah, you don't believe we're on the Eve of destruction.

As you read the words you can feel the frustration oozing out. The student uses this as a battle cry. He must do something, but even if he is successful, it doesn't matter to him because there are still so many things to be done. But for the most part his attempts are futile. There will never be an ideal world -- on earth.

KWAR Changes All Programming

In keeping with the special needs of Wartburg students during the semester testing schedule, KWAR, the student radio station, will provide a change in programming.

KWAR will broadcast six continuous hours of music during the week of Jan. 13 through 20. In addition to this scheduling change, the station will not be on the air during the daylight hours.

Schmidt Presents Faculty Recital

Dr. Warren Schmidt, Music Department, will present a faculty recital Monday at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

The organ recital will feature several works by J. S. Bach. Schmidt will present a second recital on May 15.

Muff's Muffs

24, 37, 16 . . . Dance

By DICK McCABE

Well, here I am back at Wartburg College, three sets of underwear richer and no wiser.

This spirit of giving season really bugs me. My brother gave me a list of things to give up for Lent, my dad offered me my traveling papers, my mother gave me hell, and my sister kicked me.

The ritual of visiting relatives came about again. We arrived promptly two hours late and I got mobbed by a succession of aunts screaming "Cousin Wilmore, how big you've grown!"

After sitting around for another hour finding out that Uncle Bob's leprosy was clearing, Cousin Al would be late, since the train he was coming home on derailed and no one could get the boxcar door open, Niece Elma's twins turned out to be a girl with big glands, and how amazing it was that Cousin Muff could be at some Iowa college and still classified 1-Y, it was time to eat.

Before eating, we stood as Grampa said an impromptu prayer for the food, the Milwaukee Braves, the dog in Gemini 1, Joseph Schlitz, medicare, General Custer, the food again, Lithuania and Calvin Coolidge. As Aunt Edith collapses from heat prostration and Uncle Jerome's jaw locks from yawning, Grampa gives in and says "amen."

After a not-so-gourmetish feast of breaded pigeon, sauerkraut and some 1963 Chianti wine, the pilgrimage to the facilities makes Grand Central Station look like Friday night devotions.

Following, we assembled for the annual family variety show. Aunt Edith was requested to sing for us but refused, saying she really wasn't that good, and immediately launched into "Oh Tannenbaum," which really wasn't that good.

About halfway through the sixth verse, she collapsed again, which was the cue for Uncle Melvin to do the limbo until his pants split, then for Nephew Gilbert to play "Swanee River" on his tambourine finalized by a rhetorical condemnation of the League of Women Voters and Hadasah by Uncle Dale.

Grampa then stood and displayed his tattoo of Mae West which he explained he received from Bismarck after the Second Crusade, seeing as how they didn't give Medals of Honor then. After a moment of silence for the old country (Brooklyn), Grampa recited the Christmas Carol in hardly fluent German until the whole room smelled like breaded pigeon, sauerkraut and 1963 Chianti wine.

Now Uncle Harvey suggested we watch a few of the football games on the Color TV, so we sat down and involved ourselves around the set, watching some orange and blue spots for about half an hour before realizing we just saw the second quarter of the Lloyd Thaxton Show.

Night approached, and Mom decided we'd best depart, seeing as it was late, my sister had put curlers in her hair, I'd have to drive (direct correlation to the Chianti being gone), Grampa had been asleep for two hours, my brother wet his pants during the Nebraska game and it looked like Cousin Al wouldn't make it after all.

Bidding all a pleasant New Year and goodbye, we climbed into the car only to find the gasoline had frozen. As Brother hummed some de-icer commercial, Mom suggested everyone wait inside, Sister suggested crying, Dad offered to breathe in the tank, and Aunt Edith suggested we spend the night. The walk home did me good. Ten-four.

Augsburg Hosts College SBP's

Augsburg College, Minneapolis, Minn., will host all American Lutheran Church college student body presidents at a conference scheduled for February.

According to Bill Hamm, student body president, the aim of the conference will be to develop "formal structure and foster closer cooperation" between student governments of the ALC colleges.

In Hamm's opinion, ALC schools boast a "mature" student government for a high caliber, enabling all schools to benefit from this association.

Schools participating in the conference are Augsburg College, Minneapolis, Minn.; Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S.D.; California Lutheran University; Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn.; Dana College, Blair, Neb.; Luther College, Decorah.

Pacific Lutheran University; St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.; Texas Lutheran College, Seguin, Tex.; Waldorf College, Forest City; Wartburg College; Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque; and Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

Student Characteristics Study Released At Wartburg

By SUE KELL

Attitudes, beliefs, habits and clothes of college students color a campus, make it unique. For the past four years Wartburg College has studied "Student Characteristics at Wartburg College." The study asked many questions including, "Are students influenced and changed in ways which harmonize with the goals of the institution?"

Preliminary plans for the study were made at a North Central Association Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 1961. A committee was appointed and a questionnaire developed. The committee worked with the Academic Life Committee and the president and vice president of the student body.

Committee members were the Rev. August Baetke, sociology; Ernest Oppermann, dean of students; Dr. Robert Dell, religion; Fred Thompson, former admissions, director; and Dr. Wilmuth Fruehling, psychology.

Heist Reviews Proposal

Dr. Paul Heist, of the Center for the Study of Higher Education, reviewed the preliminary proposal. Responses of the class of 1963-'64, as freshmen, were compared to their responses as seniors.

A variety of items was asked for, including family attitudes, personal interests, views toward Wartburg and religious beliefs. The committee came to no definite conclusions, but the study did indicate the unexpected as well as the expected in student trends and attitudes.

Here are some examples from the study. The class of 1963-'64 is being referred to when freshman response is compared with senior. As many as 116 graduated in 1964.

Men outnumbered women in 1961 by 52 per cent to 48 per cent. Ratio of male to female gradually increased, the greatest shift being in the shift from junior to senior year.

Four out of ten of the fathers were farmers. As many as 18 to 20 per cent were managers, officials and businessmen. One out of ten were in a profession, half of them clergy.

Iowa Is Home State

Iowa is the home state of one-half of the students, whereas 15 per cent come from Wisconsin and Illinois each and 8 per cent from Minnesota.

A total of 40 per cent of the men and 60 per cent of the women had planned to go to college "as long as they could remember." Of the parents 20 per cent went no farther than eighth grade, 35 to 40 per cent finished high school and 10 per cent finished college.

Hard work, a pleasant personality and knowing the right people were given as helps to success. Although the first two remained the same, the third was indicated by 6 per cent of the freshmen and 23 per cent of the seniors.

Preparation for vocation, chance of a better income and becoming a well-rounded person were frequent choices for coming to college.

Is Wartburg Distinctive?

Is Wartburg distinctive? "Don't know" was the choice of 42 per cent, 21 per cent "no" and 37 per cent "yes." Some students remarked that Wartburg students are narrow-minded and want to get through rather than learn. Others commended the school for its seriousness friendliness.

unity and Christian atmosphere.

Both as freshmen and as seniors 77 per cent of the students said they felt that Wartburg's faculty were guides and co-workers.

Views toward other religions were interesting. As many as 40 per cent of the freshmen and 48 per cent of the seniors chose "Other religions possess some truth about God, but Christianity possesses more truth." However, 22 per cent of the seniors chose "Other religions have as much truth about God, but Christianity is more satisfactory for me." As many as 17 per cent of the freshmen who had chosen the point that other religions have no truth changed to "sometruth" as seniors.

Of the freshmen 65 per cent and of the seniors 51 per cent indicated they believed "Jesus was both God and man, God's revelation of himself."

Bible Is Inspired

Eighty-two per cent of the students as freshmen and again as seniors indicated, "The Bible is the inspired record of man's experiences with God."

The majority indicated, "Man is creation of God who loves him and made him in his own image." A total of 78 per cent of the freshmen and 57 per cent of the seniors chose this.

The item "Man is a unique animal with distinctive rational powers which enable him to master his environment" was chosen by 4 per cent of the freshmen and 16 per cent of the seniors.

Of the freshmen 85 per cent and of the seniors 86 per cent favored "qualified Negroes attending Wartburg, participating equally in social activities and living in the same housing units."

Exchange Students Take Informative Berlin Tour

By KATIE MAAHS

Wartburg College's three exchange students at the University of Bonn, Bonn, Germany, Connie Meyer, Roberta Getzloff and Katie Maahs, recently took part in a week-long student information trip to Berlin.

Twice a year the Office for Foreign Students of the University of Bonn sponsors trips to Berlin for a nominal fee to provide the foreign students with an opportunity to get a first-hand view of the political situation in the divided city of Berlin.

Throughout the week the group, which numbered approximately thirty, along with other student groups from the German universities of Aachen and Heidelberg, participated in discussions concerning Berlin and its part in today's politics.

Topics Are Told

Some of the topics discussed were "Germany's Role Today in the East/West Question," "Germany Since 1945," "The Berlin Situation" and "The Situation of the People in East Germany."

Wartburg's students entered East Berlin two times. For foreigners it was relatively simple to cross the border into the Russian sektor.

However, the German students found it more complicated because of the present tension existing in their divided country and of the strict regulations enforced by the East Germans.

West Berlin Like Chicago

The striking difference between the two sectors of the city impressed the trio from Wartburg. West Berlin can be compared in many ways to Chicago because of its vitality, constant movement and traffic jams.

In contrast, East Berlin appears to be a quiet and spiritless city with nearly empty streets, despite its population of over a million people.

The student group included students from Finland, South Africa, Turkey, Iran, England, the United States of America, Sweden, Switzerland, Belgium, Greece, Japan, France, Argentina, El Salvador and Germany.

Discussions Are Heated

Because so many different nationalities were represented in the group, the students from Wartburg had an opportunity to hear the opinions of others toward their country and its policies, which led to several heated discussions among the group's members.

But the trip was not completely political. The students heard a concert by the Berlin Philharmonic and attended several plays in both West and East Berlin.

They also had opportunities to observe the night life and American tourists in Berlin, both of which they found extremely interesting.

Special Courses To Be Offered

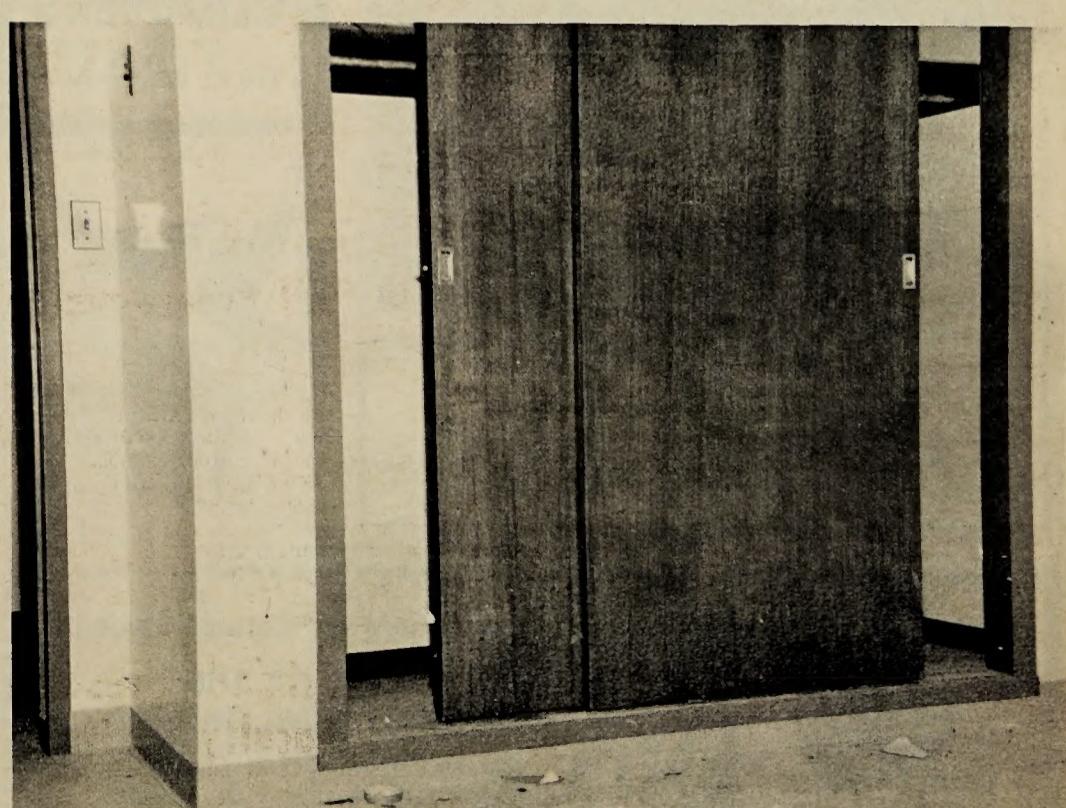

At least three courses in specific fields but especially designed for the liberal arts student will be offered next semester--two courses in music and one in journalism. The courses are planned for students not majoring in the subjects.

Symphonic Literature, a two-hour course taught by Dr. James Fritschel, Music Department, is designed to aid the non-music student in appreciation and understanding of symphonic music from the Baroque period through modern times.

Dr. Warren Schmidt, Music Department, will teach a two-hour course, History of Protestant Church Music. Historical and musical aspects of church music from the Reformation to the present are included.

Pre-theological students and parish work students may receive religion credit for this course if they have had no other course in church music.

Public Opinion, Propaganda and the Mass Media is a new two-hour course to be taught by Mrs. Margaret Garland, English and Journalism Department. It consists of a critical analysis of the place of press, radio, films and television in shaping the public mind.

Rooms in the New Clinton Addition are similar to rooms in the girls' dorms with the exception of thermostats and carpeted halls.

Three Instructors To Join Second Semester Faculty

Three new faculty members, two part-time instructors for next semester and an assistant professor of religion, have recently been hired, according to Dr. John O. Cheilevold, dean of faculty.

Miss Laura Kruse will teach Kindergarten Principles and Methods next semester, while Jack D. Wilkinson will teach Mathematics for Elementary Teachers. Marshall D. Johnson has been named assistant professor of religion for next fall.

Miss Kruse At St. Paul's

Miss Kruse is a kindergarten teacher at St. Paul's Lutheran Day School here. She received her B. A. degree from Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S. D., and her M. A. from Concordia Teachers College in Chicago.

Education Course Added At Night

A new course in the Education Department will complete the offerings available for late afternoon, evening and Saturday classes. Dr. John O. Cheilevold, dean of faculty, said that this semester's offerings are the most extensive and most varied ever scheduled.

Education 310, Kindergarten Principles and Methods, will consider recent trends and techniques in kindergarten teaching and include observations and first-hand experiences with children. Miss Laura Kruse will teach this new night course.

Other courses from the Biology, Business, English, German, History, Political Science, Psychology, Religion and Speech Departments will be included in the schedule. Fourteen courses in all will be offered.

Applications Due For Bonn Study

Students interested in applying as exchange students to the University of Bonn in Germany are asked to do so at the beginning of next semester, as announced by Dr. John O. Cheilevold, dean of faculty.

It is necessary to have first semester records completed before applicants will be considered.

If additional information on the exchange program is desired, students should contact Dr. Cheilevold.

Dubuque To Host 'Mary's Quest'

Members of the cast of "Mary's Quest" will present the play at Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque, tomorrow evening.

A liturgical drama by Olav Hartmann, the play was presented at convocation shortly before Christmas vacation. Director John Gill will accompany the cast.

30 Women Move Into Clinton Hall

Thirty junior and senior women will be moving next Thursday from Vollmer Hall to the first floor of the Clinton addition.

Facilities in Clinton are similar to those in the women's dorms. A pressing room, laundry room and lounge will be included on the floor.

The rooms themselves are the same as those in the women's dorms. The only added features will be carpeting in the halls in an effort to subdue noise, individual thermostats and combination windows.

Senior Carol Lamine will act as student housemother in the same capacity as the housemothers in Vollmer. First floor of the new addition will function in the same way as Vollmer with latches, signing out and out-of-towns.

Wartburg Loses To Penn 75-65; Tied For Third In Conference

Wartburg dropped its second game in a row Friday night as they fell to William Penn, 75 to 65.

Many of the same troubles that plagued the Knights at the State College of Iowa game remained with the Wartburg team during the Penn game. The Knights posted an abysmal 31.3 percent average on fieldgoals in the first half.

Nobody Asked Me, But . . .

Check Out Real Thing

By BILL GLITZ

Some night soon when you have nothing to do take a look at what to some is known as the Winter Athletic Schedule for Wartburg College.

Glitz

Actually, this thing has become known as the disaster to the Wartburg coaching staff. Janitors are having a hard time keeping the cobwebs out of Knights Gym. Last week there was a guy on campus wanting to know if the person who made up that schedule would like to buy the Brooklyn Bridge--or premium stock in the Edsel.

Well, anyway, take a look at that schedule and notice Jan. 29. No, no, not on the basketball part, stupid. Drop your eyes down a bit. There, don't you see it -- Jan. 29 -- Dubuque. This is the wrestling schedule. That's right, there's a collegiate sport known as wrestling.

I know, you watch it on television every Saturday, but you would have never guessed that any colleges would . . . Well, they do. Oh, it's not what you're used to watching on the idiot box.

There's not a Japanese going through a religious ritual before the match--not even anyone hitting his opponents on the head with chairs--although the thought seems to be on Dave Long's subconscious on occasion.

Nobody gets half choked to death, gouged, put to sleep by the famous sleeper (sometimes known as convo) hold, gets judo chopped or brings a tuxedo-wearing manager into the ring (known as the mat in college) with him.

You see, collegiate wrestlers do it all without a script, and they mean business. The idea in college is not to maim or cripple your opponent--just defeat him. This takes certain things that those guys on TV don't have.

First, is being in shape. Collegiate wrestling goes according to three-minute periods--but to anyone out of shape those three minutes seem like three hours. Did you ever run around the block when it was 15 degrees below zero with your mouth open--well, that's how a wrestler feels. There's no calling time out in wrestling. And sometimes that clock just doesn't want to move any faster. Being in shape for basketball is like getting ready for bird watching compared to being in shape for wrestling.

Secondly, is individual character. The word "individual" means a lot here. Wrestlers can't yell "switch" or "help" like a basketball player. If they do, they'll be counting the number of lights on the Knights Gym ceiling. And the other team will have five points. Those boys are out there all by themselves--with no help. There's nobody to help you out on your man--either you do it or it won't be done.

Admittedly, Coach Norm Johansen tries to help from the sidelines as much as possible. Jo puts more holds on folding chairs and escapes from more holds that he has put on himself during the course of a match than anyone I know. He's exhausted at the end of a meet.

Sometimes he gets so wrapped up in a bout, that if Knights Gym burned down, he wouldn't realize it for three days. He looks so intent on the proceedings he seems like Aivars Zosilus watching "Combat."

Finally, wrestlers must be alert. This is a sport with a real science. Old "Zip" Simmons would have a tough time figuring out some of the formulas for holds and escapes that these guys have to learn. Remember words from your science and math courses like "leverage," "force," etc.? These guys actually put this stuff to use in sports.

So on Jan. 29 you be at Knights Gym. Don't look for what you've been watching on TV--this'll be the real thing.

John Hearn, usually high scorer, was held to 10 tallies before he fouled out in the closing minutes that seemed to catch Penn a little off guard, but it was a case of too little too late.

Knights Top Century Mark; Have 'Off-Night' At SCI

By STEVE SHAEFFER

State College of Iowa Panthers, led by Craig Knepp and Phil Johnson, took advantage of an off night for Wartburg and defeated the Knights 84-60.

Coach Buzz Levick cited the spectacular shot of Phil Johnson as the turning point of the game. Levick said, "We never really recovered from that basket."

The basket put the Panthers out in front 30-28.

Levick added, "SCI was not that tough. We had an off night. We played them a good first 15 minutes, but the effort was just not there during the second half."

Free Throws Count Up

"The free throws were the determining factor as they hit only six more field goals than we did. An even bigger factor was the rebounding," said Levick.

Big Craig Knepp pulled down 17 rebounds and scored 25 points for the SCI quintet. Phil Johnson, called by Levick "the most underrated player around," rebounded well and added 21 points to the Panther cause.

Levick singled out Lowell Syverson, Knight center, as the standout for Wartburg. Lowell pulled down 10 rebounds and scored 15 points.

Levick said, "He (Syverson) was the only Wartburg player to play consistently throughout both halves."

Vacation Sees Action

Wartburg cagers played a much better brand of ball over Christmas vacation than they played at SCI. The Knights placed third in the Belle City Basketball Classic at Racine, Wis.

This was the first year for this tourney. The loose organization could have done much to make it the last. Nevertheless, the Knights made a good showing.

They played the tournament winner, Lewis College, in the first game and were defeated in the closing minutes, 93-92.

"Bob Blackburn (of Lewis College) was a thorn in our sides the whole night," said Levick. Blackburn scored 25 points and sparked the last minute surge that beat the Knights.

Hearn Returns

John Hearn, back from a groin injury, paced the Wartburg scoring with 20 points. A balanced scoring attack was shown by the Knights as six men finished in the double figures.

In the consolation game, Wartburg clobbered University of Illinois (Chicago branch) 104-63 for the biggest point margin of the entire year.

Lowell Syverson led the Wartburg scoring with 25 points. Hearn added 21, Beckman 19, and Ludvigsen 16 for the Knights.

Hearn was named to the all-tournament first team. He was also named the tournament's most valuable player.

IM volleyball is kept exciting by evenly matched teams.

Grossmann, Ketha Lead; League Records Show 6-0

By RANDALL SCHABACKER

Grossmann III and Ketha have both posted 6-0 records to lead their respective IM leagues.

Clinton II has won four straight to extend its record to 5-2 and take over third place in the American League. The faculty team, having forfeited most of its games, is in the American League cellar.

Clinton III and Off-campus are down there keeping it company. Grossmann Basement suffered its only defeat at the hands of the upsurging Clinton II team to fall out of the top position.

Grossmann II, which got off to a good start, has fallen rapidly to a fourth-place tie. Married Men-Beta, despite a slow start, is now showing promise of having a good season.

Service Uses Poetry, Chants

By MARIE POST

Folk songs, chants and poetry highlighted an Epiphany Service for Wilderness Wanderers in Thursday's convocation.

"Life in the twentieth century seems to be a journey. I tried to capture this feeling in the service," said the Rev. Ewald Bash of the Youth Department of The American Lutheran Church as he introduced the service which he had written and led.

Earlier, Chaplain Herman Diers had described the service as a "serious attempt for authentic worship." The form of the service was similar to "regular" church services, but the imagery of the Old Testament was less familiar.

Guitar Aids Service

Aided by a guitar player, a string bass player and the Student Congregation choir, Bash led the congregation in chanting the liturgy. Psalms chanted responsively and an Israeli folk song provided an unusual worship setting.

Christmas poems, also written by Bash over a period of years, formed the message of the service.

"This poetry shows God as He is interpreted in the 20th century," Bash said. "Through poetry I witness to my faith and show the meaning of God's power."

Bash read 11 poems. These were all Christmas poems, but they portrayed a variety of moods and situations. Issues of today, such as scientific progress and the Civil Rights movement, were included.

Failure Is Emphasized

Man's failure to celebrate Christmas and live in a truly religious manner was emphasized.

"If Christ came again, where would we find a room or time for Him?" he asked in one poem.

Answering his own question, Bash continued, "He'd have to make the best of it. In Bethlehem, He found only a stable. We leave Him homeless still."

The Epiphany service has been held. The appeal for Christmas living among the nations of the world has been made. What will we living in the 20th century do about it?

Deacons Get $195

Approximately $195 has been collected for the purchase of Communion kneelers, a project of the Student Congregation, according to project chairman Dave Steege.

The kneelers, designed by Sacred Heart of Minneapolis, Minn., will be supplemented by a banner and a stand for the cross. The money for those items will come from the Memorial Fund.

Steege said that several groups have already donated toward the goal of $550, and more contributions are expected.

Iowa Olds Takes Sting-ray As Bjorgan Heads West

By DEAN KRUCKEBERG

Buzz and Todd were driving their Stingray down Arizona Route 66 about two weeks ago when they noticed a shiny new '66 Oldsmobile passing them.

They caught only a fleeting glance, but they noticed a scholarly-looking gentleman at the wheel, obviously accompanied by his wife and three children. They barely caught sight of the Iowa license plate before the car became a speck in the horizon.

Little did they know that this gentleman was G. Rudolph Bjorgan, Wartburg College history professor, who was taking a more distant, scenic route to San Francisco, where he would attend this year's convention of the American Historical Association, of which he is a member.

Service Man Returns

"I was in southern California for a while when in the military service," said Bjorgan, "and my wife has friends and relatives there."

"I thought we would feel at home there, but things sure have changed. Places where there used to be orchards of lemon trees are now covered with housing developments."

"The traffic was terrible," according to Bjorgan. "It seems to me like everybody is going every place at the same time. Someone told me that if all the cars in California were placed bumper to bumper on all the state and federal highways, they would be six deep. I believe it."

Bjorgan Not Discovered

"We stopped at Disneyland and toured Hollywood and Beverly Hills. We saw the Universal Studios, but because of the holidays, they weren't doing any filming. I

Ashton To Speak

Phil Ashton, a representative of the Associates Investment Company of South Bend, Ind., will be on campus Monday and Tuesday. He will speak to the Business Students Association Monday evening at 7:45 in the Castle Room concerning what a company looks for when recruiting college graduates.

Interested students are encouraged to attend, according to Melvin Kramer of the Business Department.

Interviews with Ashton will be scheduled for seniors and interested juniors Tuesday. The company is interested in both business and non-business majors according to Kramer.

even stood on the corner of Hollywood and Vine for a while, but I didn't get 'discovered.'

"Another interesting place we stopped at was California Lutheran College at 1000 Oaks, Calif., which is really a sister college to Wartburg. It is situated in a picturesque valley between two mountains. It is a really new college, which graduated its first class only last year.

"The Monterey Peninsula and the Praesidio were very interesting and quite picturesque. TV fans will remember that the Praesidio is the place where Zorro hangs out.

Popularity Achieved

"I can remember when Carmel was a popular spot for servicemen. Carmel has no street lights, and it becomes quite dark at night, which no doubt helps its popularity.

"This famous village is an art colony which draws artists from all over the country. It has rugged beauty, consisting of rocky coasts and breaking waves. You can look out to the sea and watch the seals play in the water. Artists, both professional and amateur, flock to the shore to paint.

"The New Sea World in Mission Bay, San Diego, is a marina which is supposed to be even greater than Marineland. It has several porpoises and a pilot whale, something quite rare.

Whale Is Attraction

"Probably the greatest attraction of the marina is the killer whale, which they keep in a pool. It does a few tricks now, and the trainer is able to handle it, hand-feed it, and he rubs its stomach while it lies on its back.

"This is one of only two such whales in captivity. The marina has high hopes of further training it.

"I didn't become overly sentimental upon seeing the Mojave Desert again. We trained there during the war. During July and August of '43 we lived on the sand with the snakes and scorpions.

"There was a time when they wanted to give it back to the Indians, but the Indians didn't want it either.

Land Is Reclaimed

"Now people are claiming and buying land there, putting up old shacks where they come to live over the weekends. Perhaps someday it will be irrigated, and there will be a new housing development there."

While Bjorgan was attending the convention, his wife and children toured San Francisco, seeing such sights as the Golden Gate Bridge, China Town and Fishermen's Wharf.

Roger Bjorgan, Bjorgan's 16-year-old son, became rapidly bored and no doubt received surprised looks as people would notice him doing his homework leaning against the outside wall of the big hotel.

G. Rudolf Bjorgan gets into his Olds, famed for its trip to the West Coast.
